JAMES T. LANEY SCHOOL OF GRADUATE STUDIES

Established 1919

Total Living Alumni 13,652

Historical Dates

1919 – The Graduate School awards its first master’s degrees.

1948 – The Graduate School awards Emory’s first PhD.

1956 – The Graduate Division of Religion is established in collaboration with the School of Theology.

1989 – The Graduate Division of Biological and Biomedical Sciences (GDBBS) enrolls its first class of students.

1999 – The first cohort of nursing PhD students enters the Graduate School.

2001 – A joint PhD program with Georgia Tech in Biomedical Engineering is established.

2002 – The PhD program in Business enrolls its first students.

2005 – Two new doctoral programs recruit students to work with faculty based in Rollins School of Public Health—Behavioral Sciences and Health Education and Health Services Research and Health Policy.

2007 – The Computer Science and Informatics PhD program recruits its first cohort.

2009 – The Graduate School is named for President James T. Laney.

2010 – The Master’s in Development Practice enrolls its first students.

2011 – Environmental Health Sciences PhD program is launched.

2013 – The doctoral program in Islamic Civilizations opens.

Programs Offered

The Laney Graduate School (LGS) offers more than 40 degree programs, both doctoral and master's, across the humanities, the biomedical and biological, natural, public health and social sciences, as well as doctoral studies in business and nursing. Nearly 1,000 scholars and researchers make up the LGS graduate faculty, representing almost every school at Emory as well as partner institutions in Atlanta (such as Georgia Institute of Technology and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) and beyond (such as Peking University in China).

LGS has built graduate programs that bring together faculty and resources from across the University to enrich the educational and training experiences of our students and provide faculty with opportunities to move beyond the silos of the traditional departments. For example, the Graduate Division of Biological and Biomedical Sciences and the Graduate Division of Religion are LGS units that draw faculty from several departments and schools. Along with degree programs, LGS offers graduate certificates as vehicles to give students a level of systematic expertise in a field, as well as to create intellectual communities across disciplinary boundaries.

LGS also offers the innovative "doctoral pathway," Molecules to Mankind (M2M), funded by the Burroughs Wellcome Fund, which builds on Emory's breadth and depth in both laboratory and population sciences. The M2M pathway is not a PhD program, but rather is a distinct, separately administered, pathway that involves two existing PhD programs for each student, one in a laboratory science and one in a population science. The M2M faculty come from a broad spectrum of academic disciplines including medicine, public health and anthropology. There also is a collaborative relationship with faculty at the Georgia Institute of Technology and researchers at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Finally, LGS offers several 4+1 master's programs. 4+1 programs allow Emory undergraduates to obtain a master's degree with only one additional year of enrollment. These programs help LGS and Emory reach new populations of professionals and students.

CANDLER SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY

Established 1914

Total Living Alumni 8,054

Historical Dates

1914 – In the aftermath of a court case severing the relationship of Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the church decides to found a university east of the Mississippi River.

Asa G. Candler, founder of Coca-Cola, gives $1 million to found the school and the church's educational commissioners choose Atlanta for the university's location and name Bishop Warren Candler chancellor. The School of Theology opens at Wesley Memorial Church in September.

1915 – The School is named the Candler School of Theology in honor of Bishop Candler.

1916 – The School moves to the Druid Hills campus in the building now housing the Pitts Theology Library. Students' annual expenses, including board, books, laundry, and $21 for heat and lights, are $187.

1922 – Theology faculty vote to begin admitting women (no women actually graduate from Candler until 1938).

1935 – The School extends admission to students from denominations other than Methodist.

1946 – Candler becomes the largest Methodist seminary in the country.

1947 – Tuition charge reaches $100.

1956 – Collaborating with the Emory College Department of Religion, the School forms the Graduate Division of Religion.

1958 – Ad Hoc faculty committee urges Trustees to consider desegregation.

1965 – Candler is desegregated.

1974 – Candler enrolls its first Master of Theological Studies degree students.

1975 – The University purchases the 220,000-volume collection of Hartford Seminary, making Pitts Library one of the largest theology libraries in the country.

1981 – The William R. Cannon Chapel and Religious Center is consecrated.

1984 – The Aquinas Center is founded.

1984 – More than 46% of United Methodist pastors in the Southeast are Candler graduates.

ROLLINS SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Established 1990

Total Living Alumni 7,605

Historical Dates

September 19, 1975 – Emory President James T. Laney and the University's Board of Trustees approve the Master of Community Health program and degree under the School of Medicine. Constance Conrad, MD, MPH, is selected as the first director and the first cohort of 16 students is admitted.

1978 – Emory's Community Health Program receives accreditation.

1982 – Eugene J. Gangarosa, MD, MPH, becomes Director of the Master of Community Health Program.

1983 – Emory changes its degree title from a Master of Community Health to a Master of Public Health.

1988 – MPH program moves to the new American Cancer Society Building located at 1599 Clifton Road.

1989 – The Public Health Program is elevated to Division status within the Woodruff Health Sciences Center.

September 13, 1990 – Emory's Board of Trustees grant school status to the Division of Public Health and appoint Raymond Greenberg, MD, PhD, MPH, its founding dean.

1990 – Dr. Carol J.R. Hogue becomes the school's first endowed chair, the Jules and Uldeen Terry Chair in Maternal Health.

1990 – Biostatistics Consulting Center is established to support investigators across the University and Woodruff Health Sciences Center.

1990 – First Virginia S. DeHaan Lecture in Health Education and Promotion is given.

1991 – The RSPH Alumni Association is founded.

1991 – Founding Advisory Board is established.

1992 – The School is accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH).

1992 – The Women's and Children's Center (WCC) is founded as a focal point for training and research in maternal and child health and women's health.

1992 – Eugene J. Gangarosa Scholarship Fund is established – the first endowment for Global Field Experiences.

1993 – In collaboration with the School of Medicine, the School establishes the Center for Injury Control.

1993 – First RSPH Career Fair is held.

1994 – Founding Advisory Board name is changed to Community Advisory Board.

1994 – To recognize the long-term support of the Rollins family for Emory University, the School officially becomes the Rollins School of Public Health (RSPH).

1994 – The School moves into its new home, the Grace Crum Rollins Building.

1995 – James W. Curran, MD, MPH, is named dean.

1996 – The RSPH Dean's Council is established to replace the Community Advisory Board. In collaboration with the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and Emory College, the Center for Health, Culture, and Society (CHCS) is founded. The CHCS encourages interdisciplinary and comparative approaches to public health problems.

1996 – The MD/MPH joint degree program is formally established.

1996 – The Career Services office is established.

1997 – William Foege joins RSPH as the Presidential Distinguished Professor of International Health.

1998 – Emory gains designation as a National Institutes of Health Center for AIDS Research (CFAR). The Center supports HIV/AIDS research across the University.

1999 – The Edmund S. Muskie Fellowship and Peace Corps Masters International Program are established.

2000 – The School initiates the Career MPH Program for experienced health professionals through two on-campus sessions per semester with intervening Web-based instruction.

2000 – The School graduates its 2,000th student as it celebrates its 25th anniversary as a program at Emory.

2001 – The Center on Health Outcomes and Quality (CHOQ) is established. Incorporating a former unit of Aetna, the CHOQ produces research-based knowledge and methods to help health plans, physicians, and hospitals enhance the quality and cost-effectiveness of patient care.

2001 – With support from the American Cancer Society, Legacy Foundation and Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the School establishes the Tobacco Technical Assistance Consortium to assist organizations in states across the country in building and growing highly effective tobacco control programs.

2002 – With a gift from O. Wayne Rollins Family Foundation, the Center for Public Health Preparedness and Research (CPHPR) is established. The Center provides training and research opportunities to students and faculty that would improve the public health capacity to prevent and to respond to emerging infectious disease threats, including the threat of bioterrorism.

2002 – The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation makes its first endowment gift to establish the William H. Foege Global Health Fellowship program.

2002 – The Center for Global Safe Water is established as a partnership among Emory University, CARE USA, the CDC and Population Services International. Its mission is to improve access to safe drinking water globally through applied research, evaluation and training activities.

2002 – The Rosalynn Carter Chair in Mental Health is established as the first endowed chair for mental health in the U.S. and the first joint appointment with The Carter Center.

2003 – The Center for Throughput Experimentation, Design and Analysis is established to assist Emory researchers actively engaged in data-intensive investigations resulting from Micro-Array experiments.

2003 – The School graduates its 3,000th student.

2004 – Emory is awarded funding from the CDC to establish a Prevention Research Center focused on cancer. Its community partner is the Southwest Georgia Cancer Coalition, representing 22 rural counties in Southwest Georgia.

2004 – PhD programs are established in Behavioral Sciences and Health Education, and in Health Policy and Management.

2006 – The Hubert Department of Global Health becomes the first department at Emory to be named and endowed.

2008 – Groundbreaking is held for the Claudia Nance Rollins Building.

2009 – Emory University establishes an endowed chair in honor of Rollins School of Public Health Dean James W. Curran. The recognition marks the first time Emory has endowed a chair for a sitting dean. Curran and his successors will be known as the James W. Curran Dean of Public Health.

2009 – Dean's conference room in the Claudia Nance Rollins Building is named in honor of Rollins School of Public Health's founding dean Raymond S. Greenberg, MD, PhD.

2010 – Claudia Nance Rollins Building is dedicated.

2011 – School is ranked 6th by US News and World Report.

2011 – James W. Curran is the recipient of the Ryan White Distinguished Leadership Award.

2011- PhD program is established in Environmental Health Sciences.

2012 – William Foege, emeritus professor, receives the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President Obama.

2012 – The School receives a perfect score and maximum 7 years of accreditation from the Council on Education for Public Health.

Programs Offered

The School of Public Health offers two master degree programs (Master of Public Health, Master of Science in Public Health) and eight dual degree programs (MBA-MPH, MD-MPH, MSN-MPH, MMSC(PA)-MPH, DPT-MPH, MDiv-MPH, MTS-MPH and JD-MPH). In addition, the School offers an MPH via distance education, two 5-year BA/MPH and BA/MSPH programs with Emory College, and a Masters of Science in Clinical Research in conjunction with the School of Medicine.

Continuing education/certificate programs in a variety of disciplines are offered throughout the year.

The School of Public Health, through the Graduate School, offers doctoral programs in Epidemiology, Biostatistics, Behavioral Sciences and Health Education, Health Policy and Health Services Research, Environmental Health Sciences, and collaborates with the School of Medicine in offering a doctoral degree in Nutrition and Health Sciences.

YERKES NATIONAL PRIMATE RESEARCH CENTER

Established 1930

Historical Dates

1930 – Yale psychobiologist Robert M. Yerkes, PhD, founds the Yale Anthropoid Experiment Station, later known as the Yale Laboratories of Primate Biology. After Yerkes' retirement, the center is renamed in his honor.

1956 – Yale University transfers ownership of the Yerkes Laboratory of Primate Biology to Emory University.

1960 – Congress passes legislation creating the National Institutes of Health's Regional Primate Research Centers program to provide the scientific community with specialized resources needed for primate research. The next year, Emory and six other research universities are selected as sites for the regional primate research centers.

1965 – Federal funding enables Emory to construct primate housing, lab and support facilities on its main campus and at a satellite location in Lawrenceville, Georgia. This same year, the Yerkes Research Center moves to Atlanta. It has since served as a focal point for cross disciplinary collaboration in research—both within Emory and with affiliated scientists at other institutions across the world.

1985 – The Yerkes Research Center receives full accreditation from The Council on Accreditation of the Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care International (AAALAC), the gold standard of laboratory animal care.

1999 – The Yerkes facility is expanded to accommodate the newly established Emory Vaccine Center, to facilitate vaccine development and research in AIDS, malaria, hepatitis C and other infectious diseases.

1999 – Yerkes becomes the first home for the newly formed Center for Behavioral Neuroscience (CBN), which provides resources to foster innovative research on the basic neurobiology of complex social behaviors associated with fear, aggression, affiliation and reproduction.

2001 – The DNA vaccine microbiologist Harriet Robinson, PhD, developed is shown to prevent development of AIDS in monkeys infected with a highly virulent form of HIV. Today, this vaccine is in clinical trials in humans.

2001 – Stuart Zola, PhD, comes to Emory from UC San Diego to become director of the Yerkes Research Center.

2002 – The NIH designates the Yerkes Research Center and seven other primate research centers as national primate research centers in recognition of their involvement with and impact on research programs worldwide.

2003 – The Yerkes Research Center becomes a critical component of the Southeastern Regional Center of Excellence for Emerging Infections and Biodefense, a federally funded initiative to develop new vaccines, drugs and diagnostic tests against emerging infections and to defend against organisms that might be used in bioterrorist attacks.

2004 – The Yerkes Research Center opens a new 92,000-square-foot neuroscience research building with state-of-the-art lab and imaging facilities currently used by scientists throughout the university. The Yerkes Research Center is the only center to have onsite MRI, PET and cyclotron facilities. The center has invested more than $3 million in imaging capabilities to facilitate neuroscience research projects involving studies of anatomy, physiology and function.

2005 – The Yerkes Research Center celebrates its 75th anniversary of advancing science and improving health.

2007 – The National Institute of Aging grants Yerkes researchers more than $10 million during a five-year period to compare changes that occur in normal aging humans, humans with Alzheimer's disease and humans with mild cognitive impairment to changes that occur in nonhuman primates. The goal is to identify ways to diagnose aging-related diseases earlier in order to increase the chances for effective treatment, as well as to develop new treatments based on specific physiological changes. This is the largest grant Yerkes has ever received.

2008 – In the first study of its kind, Yerkes researchers develop the first transgenic nonhuman primate model of Huntington's disease (HD). This development is expected to lead to greater understanding of the underlying biology of HD and to the development of potential therapies.

2008 – Yerkes opens a multi-purpose building known as the CVMAR at its field station in Lawrenceville. Certified LEED Gold, the CVMAR is the cornerstone for programs using social colonies of genetically typed nonhuman primates to help researchers understand the interaction between genetics and environment and the roles they play in human health and disease.

2009 – Three Yerkes researchers receive highest honors for their work to advance science and improve health. Yerkes director Dr. Stuart Zola and researcher Larry Young, PhD, are selected as fellows of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, an honor the organization's members bestow upon their peers. Dr. Young also receives one of only four McKnight Technological Innovations in Neuroscience awards this year. Kerry Ressler, MD, PhD, is recognized for his contributions with the prestigious Freedman Award, which the National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression presents annually.

2010 – The National Institutes of Health award Emory University $6.6 million to support a Morris K. Udall Center of Excellence in Parkinson's Disease Research to facilitate collaboration among researchers who will focus on developing more effective Parkinson's disease treatments with fewer side effects. Yerkes Researcher Thomas Wichmann, MD, is the principal investigator of the new center.

2011 – The Yerkes Research Center begins construction on its Dual-Function Facility, which will further research in the national health priority areas of infectious diseases and transplantation. The National Institutes of Health award Yerkes $15 million for the construction as part of the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act.

2012 – The Institute of Medicine (IOM) elects Yerkes researcher Kerry Ressler, MD, PhD, to its new class. Election to the IOM is one of the highest honors in the fields of health and medicine, and recognizes individuals who have demonstrated outstanding professional achievement and commitment to service.

2012 – A team of researchers at the Yerkes Research Center and the Emory Vaccine Center receive a three-year grant of $6 million from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation as part of a worldwide effort aimed at developing an effective vaccine for HIV/AIDS.

2013 – The Yerkes Research Center dedicates its Dual-Function Facility (DFF) and its Integrated Research Addition to its Neuroscience Research Facility. The DFF, which was awarded gold LEED, will support research for more than 60 basic, translational and clinical scientists and staff who focus on transplantation medicine and infectious diseases. The three-story addition, which was awarded silver LEED, includes research space for behavioral neuroscience, drug development, genetics, proteomics and psychiatric diseases.

2014 – R. Paul Johnson, MD, begins as the new director of the Yerkes National Primate Research Center. Dr. Johnson is internationally recognized for his leadership in developing innovative research models in HIV/AIDS and in building effective working relationships with researchers throughout the world.

2014 – The Yerkes Research Center receives continued full accreditation from the Association for the Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care International (AAALAC). Such accreditation shows an institution is serious about setting, achieving, and maintaining high standards for animal care and use, and is committed to animal welfare in science. This latest review begins the 31st consecutive year of full accreditation for the Yerkes Research Center.

Research Programs

Established in 1930, the Yerkes National Primate Research Center paved the way for what has become the National Institutes of Health-funded National Primate Research Center (NPRC) program. For more than eight decades, the Yerkes Research Center has been dedicated to conducting essential basic science and translational research to advance scientific understanding and to improve human health and well-being. Today, the Yerkes Research Center is one of only seven NPRCs. The center provides leadership, training and resources to foster scientific creativity, collaboration and discoveries, and research at the center is grounded in scientific integrity, expert knowledge, respect for colleagues, an open exchange of ideas and compassionate, quality animal care.

In the fields of microbiology and immunology, infectious diseases, pharmacology and drug discovery, transplantation, neurologic and psychiatric diseases, as well as behavioral, cognitive and developmental neuroscience, Yerkes scientists use innovative experimental models and cutting-edge technologies to explore and test transformative concepts aimed at: preventing and treating viral diseases such as AIDS; designing novel vaccines for infectious diseases such as malaria and tuberculosis; enhancing the potential of organ transplantation and regenerative medicine; discovering new drugs and drug classes through high-throughput screening; defining the basic neurobiology and genetics of social behavior and developing new therapies for disorders such as autism and drug addiction; investigating how adverse social experience and consuming an unhealthy diet influence neurobehavioral and immune system development, and evaluating interventions to alleviate negative health outcomes; understanding the biology of neurodegenerative diseases, such as Alzheimer’s and Parkinson’s diseases; and advancing knowledge about the evolutionary links between biology and behavior.

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY SERVICES

In 2013, University Libraries and the Office of Information Technology merged to form Library and Information Technology Services (LITS).

Information About Libraries

The Libraries of Emory University include the Robert W. Woodruff Library, as well as the Woodruff Health Sciences Center (WHSC) Library, the Hugh F. MacMillan Law Library, the Pitts Theology Library, the Goizueta Business Library and the Oxford College Library. Holdings of the Emory Libraries total approximately 4 million print and electronic volumes, more than 93,000 electronic journals, and internationally renowned special collections including more than 25,000 linear feet of manuscripts and archives.

Emory's Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives and Rare Book Library, formerly MARBL, offers rich collections in areas such as the Irish literary revival, 20th Century American, British and Irish poetry, and African-American literature, history and culture. The library collects and connects stories of human experience, promotes access and learning, and offers opportunities for dialogue for all wise hearts who seek knowledge. African Americans in sports represents a new collecting focus announced in 2011. The Rose Library is also strong in research collections devoted to the social and cultural history of the American South, with a particular emphasis on Georgia and Atlanta.

The libraries offer access to thousands of electronic information resources, including in-house digital innovations such as The Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade Database (<http://www.slavevoyages.org>), the Internet journal Southern Spaces (www.southernspaces.org), and the Global Health Chronicles (<http://globalhealthchronicles.org>).

Pitts Theology Library, the third-largest theology library in the country, is home to the Richard C. Kessler Reformation Collection. The Woodruff Health Sciences Center Library includes branches at Grady Hospital and Emory University Hospital. Emory University's Hugh F. MacMillan Law Library is a selective depository for U.S. government documents, and is a full depository for publications of the European Union.

The Emory Libraries are members of the Association of Research Libraries, OCLC, the Center for Research Libraries, the Coalition for Networked Information, the Digital Library Federation, and the Hathi Trust Digital Library. For more information about the libraries, visit <http://libraries.emory.edu>.

Libraries Historical Dates

1897 – (Warren Akin) Candler Library is constructed—the first separate library on Emory's original campus at Oxford, Georgia.

1911 – A collection of books and papers associated with John Wesley and his family is purchased as the university's first significant collection of rare books and manuscripts.

1926 – (Asa Griggs) Candler Library opens—the first separate library on the new Atlanta campus.

1969 – The Robert W. Woodruff Library, the first library built at Emory since 1926, opens, providing capacity for more than a million volumes.

1972 – One-millionth volume is added to the University's libraries.

1975 – 220,000-volume collection of the Hartford Seminary is purchased, moving Pitts Theology Library into the front ranks of America's theology libraries

1976 – Pitts Theology Library expands into renovated space, occupying the entire original Theology Building.

1979 – The W.B. Yeats collection is acquired, Woodruff Library's first step in building world-class poetry and modern literary archives.

1987 – The two-millionth volume is added to the University's library holdings.

1987 – The Health Sciences Library is created, bringing together medical and dental libraries in a new location.

1994 – The Virtual Library Project launches, marking the beginning of Emory libraries' digital projects and programs.

1995 – The Hugh F. MacMillan Law Library opens.

Libraries Historical Dates, continued

2001 – The Marian K. Heilbrun Music and Media Library is dedicated. on Level 4 of the Center for Library and Information Resources.

2003 – The renovated Asa G. Candler Library reopens, featuring the newly restored William L. Matheson Reading Room.

2004 – The Raymond Danowski Poetry Library is acquired—the largest collection of modern English-language poetry ever assembled by a private collector (some 70,000 volumes).

2006 – The literary archive of Salman Rushdie is acquired.

2007 – The archive of Pulitzer Prize-winner Alice Walker is acquired.

2008 – Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) places archive at Emory.

2010 – The Salman Rushdie Archives and Exhibition opens.

2013 – Emory Libraries and Information Technology Services are combined; The Emory Center for Digital Scholarship (ECDS) opens.

2014 – Pitts Theology Library opens in newly constructed space; Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives and Rare Book Library opens in expanded and renovated space on Woodruff Library's top floor.
