2016 - 2017 ACADEMIC PROFILE

A Profile of the Schools and Academic Resources
Institutional Research, in the Office of Planning and Budgeting, prepared this brief profile to provide academic and administrative leaders frequently needed information about the university and its schools, libraries, and information technology services.

Our office welcomes suggestions to enhance the usefulness of the report. Please contact Ellen Deatrick (edeatri@emory.edu) with any comments or suggestions.

Melissa Bolyard, Ph.D.

Total Living Alumni* 143,772
* Represents unduplicated alumni; includes School of Dentistry alumni.

Historical Dates
December 10, 1836 – Emory College is established at Oxford and named for John Emory.
1841 – Emory’s first three graduates receive degrees.
1861 – Emory closes during the Civil War and reopens in 1866.
1914 – The Candler School of Theology opens as the first academic division of Emory in Atlanta.
1919 – Emory College moves from Oxford to Atlanta.
1953 – Emory College establishes an official policy permitting women to enroll.
1962 – Emory wins lawsuit allowing it to admit African-Americans while maintaining tax exempt status.
1979 – George and Robert Woodruff announce the transfer to Emory of the $105 million Emily and Ernest Woodruff fund, a portion of which is used to establish the Woodruff Professorships to attract distinguished scholars to the faculty.
1990 – Emory launches a 5-year capital campaign, with a goal of $400 million and raises $420 million.
1995 – Funded research passes $100 million.
1995 – Emory is admitted to the Association of American Universities, the 62 top research universities in the US and Canada.
1996 – Campus master plan adopted to guide Emory’s physical development for the next half-century. The Distinguished Faculty Lectureship is established.
1998 – Emory acquires the 42-acre property previously known as the Georgia Mental Health Institute.
2002 – Clairmont campus opens and funded research reaches $277 million.
2003 – James Wagner is appointed nineteenth president of Emory.
2005 – Emory releases Where Courageous Inquiry Leads, the 2005-15 strategic plan charting the University’s future.
2007 – His Holiness the Dalai Lama accepts Emory’s offer of a Presidential Distinguished Professorship.
2007 – Emory Advantage, the University’s financial aid program benefitting low- and middle-income undergraduate students, is established.
2008 – The University launches Campaign Emory—a $1.6 billion fundraising endeavor designed to realize the challenging goals outlined in the university's strategic plan "Where Courageous Inquiry Leads."
2009 – Emory is recognized by the Chronicle of Higher Education as one of the nation’s “Great Colleges to Work For.”
2010 – Emory celebrates achievements of first five years of Strategic Plan and prepares to observe 175th anniversary in 2011.
2011 – As Emory prepares to host the first national conference on slavery and universities, Emory’s trustees issue a statement of regret for “Emory’s entwinement with slavery” during the College’s early years.
2011 – The New England Journal of Medicine publishes a survey indicating that no other single university had invented more drug therapies than Emory during the previous forty years.
2012 – NCAA Division III national championships are won by the men’s tennis team and the women’s swimming and diving team.
2012 – Emory Point opens.
2012 – Emory University Hospital and Emory University Hospital Midtown are recognized as #2 and #6 in quality, respectively, out of more than 250 hospitals affiliated with academic medical centers throughout the nation—the first time a single health system has two hospitals ranked in the top ten for quality.
2012 – Natasha Tretheway, the Robert W. Woodruff Professor of Creative Writing, is named the 19th US Poet Laureate.
2012 – Emory completes the largest fund-raising campaign in its history, raising nearly $1.7 billion on its goal of $1.6 billion. More than 149,000 donors contributed to make the campaign a success.
2013 – The Class and Labor Committee submits its report after two years of work, making Emory the first university in the country to engage substantively and deeply on matters of class and its impact on the campus community.

2014 – Mahlon Delong, MD, the William Timmie Professor of Neurology in the School of Medicine, is awarded the Lasker-Debakey Clinical Medical Research Award, one of the world’s most respected science prizes, in recognition of his role in developing deep-brain stimulation to treat advanced Parkinson’s disease.

2014 – During deadly Ebola epidemic in West Africa, Emory receives the first patients infected with the disease in North America. After successfully treating them, Emory is named national leader for training and education about treatment of Ebola.

2015 – The Water Hub is dedicated, first of its kind in the nation. When fully operational it will save Emory nearly 150 million gallons of potable water each year.

2015 – The newly named Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library is dedicated after extensive renovation. Alumnus, philanthropist, and rare-book collector Rose commemorates the reopening by donating a complete set of 18th-century Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society.

2015 – Emory concludes and celebrates the successes of its ten-year strategic plan Where Courageous Inquiry Leads.

2015 – Leah Michalove is named Emory’s nineteenth Rhodes Scholar.

Historical Dates

1919 – The Graduate School awards its first master’s degrees.

1948 – The Graduate School awards Emory’s first PhD.

1956 – The Graduate Division of Religion is established in collaboration with the School of Theology.

1989 – The Graduate Division of Biological and Biomedical Sciences (GDBBS) enrolls its first class of students.

1999 – The first cohort of nursing PhD students enters the Graduate School.

2001 – A joint PhD program with Georgia Tech in Biomedical Engineering is established.

2002 – The PhD program in Business enrolls its first students.

2005 – Two new doctoral programs recruit students to work with faculty based in Rollins School of Public Health—Behavioral Sciences and Health Education and Health Services Research and Health Policy.

2007 – The Computer Science and Informatics PhD program recruits its first cohort.

2009 – The Graduate School is named for President James T. Laney.

2010 – The Master’s in Development Practice enrolls its first students.

2011 – Environmental Health Sciences PhD program is launched.

2013 – The doctoral program in Islamic Civilizations opens.

2016 – The doctoral program in Economics resumes.

Programs Offered

The Laney Graduate School (LGS) offers more than 40 degree programs, both doctoral and master’s, across the humanities, the biomedical and biological, natural, public health and social sciences, as well as doctoral studies in business and nursing. Nearly 1,000 scholars and researchers make up the LGS graduate faculty, representing almost every school at Emory as well as partner institutions in Atlanta (such as Georgia Institute of Technology and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention) and beyond (such as Peking University in China).

LGS has built graduate programs that bring together faculty and resources from across the University to enrich the educational and training experiences of our students and provide faculty with opportunities to move beyond the silos of the traditional departments. For example, the Graduate Division of Biological and Biomedical Sciences and the Graduate Division of Religion are LGS units that draw faculty from several departments and schools. Along with degree programs, LGS offers graduate certificates as vehicles to give students a level of systematic expertise in a field, as well as to create intellectual communities across disciplinary boundaries.

LGS also offers the innovative “doctoral pathway,” Molecules to Mankind (M2M), funded by the Burroughs Wellcome Fund, which builds on Emory's breadth and depth in both laboratory and population sciences. The M2M pathway is not a PhD program, but rather is a distinct, separately administered, pathway that involves two existing PhD programs for each student, one in a laboratory science and one in a population science. The M2M faculty come from a broad spectrum of academic disciplines including medicine, public health and anthropology. There also is a collaborative relationship with faculty at the Georgia Institute of Technology and researchers at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

And finally, LGS offers several 4+1 master’s programs. 4+1 programs allow Emory undergraduates to obtain a master’s degree with only one additional year of enrollment. These programs help LGS and Emory reach new populations of professionals and students.

Candler School of Theology

Established 1914

Total Living Alumni 8,132

Historical Dates

1914 – In the aftermath of a court case severing the relationship of Vanderbilt University and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the church decides to found a university east of the Mississippi River. Asa G. Candler, founder of Coca-Cola, gives $1 million to found the school and the church’s educational commissioners choose Atlanta for the university’s location and name Bishop Warren Candler chancellor. The School of Theology opens at Wesley Memorial Church in September.

1915 – The School is named the Candler School of Theology in honor of Bishop Candler.

1916 – The School moves to the Druid Hills campus in the building now housing the Pitts Theology Library. Students’ annual expenses, including board, books, laundry, and $21 for heat and lights, are $187.

1922 – Theology faculty vote to begin admitting women (no women actually graduate from Candler until 1938).

1935 – The School extends admission to students from denominations other than Methodist.

1946 – Candler becomes the largest Methodist seminary in the country.

1947 – Tuition charge reaches $100.

1956 – Collaborating with the Emory College Department of Religion, the School forms the Graduate Division of Religion.

1958 – Ad Hoc faculty committee urges Trustees to consider desegregation.

1965 – Candler is desegregated.

1974 – Candler enrolls its first Master of Theological Studies degree students.

1975 – The University purchases the 220,000-volume collection of Hartford Seminary, making Pitts Library one of the largest theology libraries in the country.

1984 – The Aquinas Center is founded.

1984 – More than 46% of United Methodist pastors in the Southeast are Candler graduates.

2001 – 500,000th accession to the Pitts Library and 20th anniversary of Cannon Chapel are celebrated.

2007 – The School’s first female dean, Dr. Jan Love, is appointed.

2008 – A new LEED certified, state-of-the-art building, featuring 65,000 square feet of classroom and office space, is completed.

2009 – The Swanson Art Collection at Candler School of Theology opens. John August Swanson is a noted Los Angeles artist regarded for his finely detailed and brilliantly colored paintings and original prints. His works hang in such prestigious venues as the Smithsonian Institution, the Vatican Museums, and the Tate Gallery in London. With more than 50 pieces, Candler holds the largest collection of Swanson’s work.

2013 – Phase I of Candler’s new building (completed in 2008) is named for Rita Anne Rollins, the first grandchild of O. Wayne and Grace Rollins, founders of the O. Wayne Rollins Foundation.

2013 – Bishops Hall, which had served the school since being dedicated in September 1957, was razed to make room for the new theology library.

2014 – Candler completes Phase II of its building project. The newly renovated theology school building sits on the location of the former Bishops Hall, is the new home of Pitts Theology Library and serves as the connecting point between Cannon Chapel and the Rita Anne Rollins building.

2014 – Candler kicks off a yearlong celebration of its Centennial, which is themed “The Candler Centennial in Story and Prophecy.”

2014 – Candler establishes the James T. and Berta R. Laney Legacy in Moral Leadership program, with the Rev. Dr. Robert Franklin appointed as the first Laney Professor.

2015 – The Leadership and Multi-Faith Program begins, a joint initiative between Candler and the Ivan Allen College of Liberal Arts at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

2015 – Candler hosts “Prophetic Voices: Confronting Theological Challenges of the Next Century,” a major academic conference featuring 15 renowned scholars, including Pulitzer Prize-winning author Marilynne Robinson.

2016 – Candler hosts “Unfinished Worlds: Jürgen Moltmann at 90,” an academic conference honoring one of the most influential theologians of the 20th century, who was a distinguished visiting professor at Candler from 1983-1993.

Programs Offered

The School of Theology offers Master of Divinity, Master of Religion and Public Life, Master of Religious Leadership, Master of Theological Studies, Master of Theology, Doctor of Ministry, and Doctor of Theology degree programs, as well as dual degrees with Emory's Goizueta Business School, School of Law, Rollins School of Public Health, Laney Graduate School, and the University of Georgia School of Social Work.

YERKES NATIONAL PRIMATE RESEARCH CENTER

Established 1930

Historical Dates

1930 – Yale psychobiologist Robert M. Yerkes, PhD, founds the Yale Anthropoid Experiment Station, later known as the Yale Laboratories of Primate Biology. After Yerkes’ retirement, the center is renamed in his honor.

1956 – Yale University transfers ownership of the Yerkes Laboratory of Primate Biology to Emory University.

1960 – Congress passes legislation creating the National Institutes of Health’s Regional Primate Research Centers program to provide the scientific community with specialized resources needed for primate research. The next year, Emory and six other research universities are selected as sites for the regional primate research centers.

1965 – Federal funding enables Emory to construct primate housing, lab and support facilities on its main campus and at a satellite location in Lawrenceville, Georgia. This same year, the Yerkes Research Center moves to Atlanta. It has since served as a focal point for cross disciplinary collaboration in research—both within Emory and with affiliated scientists at other institutions across the world.

1985 – The Yerkes Research Center receives full accreditation from The Council on Accreditation of the Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care International (AAALAC), the gold standard of laboratory animal care.

1999 – The Yerkes facility is expanded to accommodate the newly established Emory Vaccine Center, to facilitate vaccine development and research in AIDS, malaria, hepatitis C and other infectious diseases.

1999 – Yerkes becomes the first home for the newly formed Center for Behavioral Neuroscience (CBN), which provides resources to foster innovative research on the basic neurobiology of complex social behaviors associated with fear, aggression, affiliation and reproduction.

2001 – The DNA vaccine microbiologist Harriet Robinson, PhD, developed is shown to prevent development of AIDS in monkeys infected with a highly virulent form of HIV. Today, this vaccine is in clinical trials in humans.
2001 – Stuart Zola, PhD, comes to Emory from UC San Diego to become director of the Yerkes Research Center.

2002 – The NIH designates the Yerkes Research Center and seven other primate research centers as national primate research centers in recognition of their involvement with and impact on research programs worldwide.

2003 – The Yerkes Research Center becomes a critical component of the Southeastern Regional Center of Excellence for Emerging Infections and Biodefense, a federally funded initiative to develop new vaccines, drugs and diagnostic tests against emerging infections and to defend against organisms that might be used in bioterrorist attacks.

2004 – The Yerkes Research Center opens a new 92,000-square-foot neuroscience research building with state-of-the-art lab and imaging facilities currently used by scientists throughout the university. The Yerkes Research Center is the only center to have onsite MRI, PET and cyclotron facilities. The center has invested more than $3 million in imaging capabilities to facilitate neuroscience research projects involving studies of anatomy, physiology and function.

2005 – The Yerkes Research Center celebrates its 75th anniversary of advancing science and improving health.

2007 – The National Institute of Aging grants Yerkes researchers more than $10 million during a five-year period to compare changes that occur in normal aging humans, humans with Alzheimer’s disease and humans with mild cognitive impairment to changes that occur in nonhuman primates. The goal is to identify ways to diagnose aging-related diseases earlier in order to increase the chances for effective treatment, as well as to develop new treatments based on specific physiological changes. This is the largest grant Yerkes has ever received.

2008 – In the first study of its kind, Yerkes researchers develop the first transgenic nonhuman primate model of Huntington’s disease (HD). This development is expected to lead to greater understanding of the underlying biology of HD and to the development of potential therapies.

2008 – Yerkes opens a multi-purpose building known as the CVMAR at its field station in Lawrenceville. Certified LEED Gold, the CVMAR is the cornerstone for programs using social colonies of genetically typed nonhuman primates to help researchers understand the interaction between genetics and environment and the roles they play in human health and disease.

2009 – Three Yerkes researchers receive highest honors for their work to advance science and improve health. Yerkes director Dr. Stuart Zola and researcher Larry Young, PhD, are selected as fellows of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, an honor the organization’s members bestow upon their peers. Dr. Young also receives one of only four McKnight Technological Innovations in Neuroscience awards this year. Kerry Ressler, MD, PhD, is recognized for his contributions with the prestigious Freedman Award, which the National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression presents annually.

2010 – The National Institutes of Health award Emory University $6.6 million to support a Morris K. Udall Center of Excellence in Parkinson’s Disease Research to facilitate collaboration among researchers who will focus on developing more effective Parkinson’s disease treatments with fewer side effects. Yerkes Researcher Thomas Wichmann, MD, is the principal investigator of the new center.

2011 – The Yerkes Research Center begins construction on its Dual-Function Facility, which will further research in the national health priority areas of infectious diseases and transplantation. The National Institutes of Health award Yerkes $15 million for the construction as part of the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act.

2012 – The Institute of Medicine (IOM) elects Yerkes researcher Kerry Ressler, MD, PhD, to its new class. Election to the IOM is one of the highest honors in the fields of health and medicine, and recognizes individuals who have demonstrated outstanding professional achievement and commitment to service.

2012 – A team of researchers at the Yerkes Research Center and the Emory Vaccine Center receive a three-year grant of $6 million from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation as part of a worldwide effort aimed at developing an effective vaccine for HIV/AIDS.

2013 – The Yerkes Research Center dedicates its Dual-Function Facility (DFF) and its Integrated Research Addition to its Neuroscience Research Facility. The DFF, which was awarded gold LEED, will support research for more than 60 basic, translational and clinical scientists and staff who focus on transplantation medicine and infectious diseases. The three-story addition, which was awarded silver LEED, includes research space for behavioral neuroscience, drug development, genetics, proteomics and psychiatric diseases.

2013 – The National Institute of Mental Health awards Emory a $9.5 million Silvio O. Conte Center for Oxytocin and Social Cognition to discover how oxytocin influences the brain’s processing of social information to guide future treatments for autism spectrum disorders. Yerkes Division Chief Larry Young, PhD, is the grant’s Principal Investigator.
2014 – R. Paul Johnson, MD, begins as the new director of the Yerkes National Primate Research Center. Dr. Johnson is internationally recognized for his leadership in developing innovative research models in HIV/AIDS and in building effective working relationships with researchers throughout the world.

2014 – The Yerkes Research Center receives continued full accreditation from the Association for the Assessment and Accreditation of Laboratory Animal Care International (AAALAC). Such accreditation shows an institution is serious about setting, achieving, and maintaining high standards for animal care and use, and is committed to animal welfare in science. This latest review begins the 31st consecutive year of full accreditation for the Yerkes Research Center.

2014 – Yerkes Division Chief Larry Young, PhD, is inducted into the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, one of the nation’s most prestigious honorary societies and a leading center for independent policy research.

2015 – The Yerkes Research Center submits a 2,000+ page base grant renewal to the National Institutes of Health (NIH). NIH requires centers to report accomplishments and plans at least every five years in order to maintain their National Primate Research Center designation, as well as funding for a portion of the center’s infrastructure expenses.

2016 – The Yerkes Research Center receives an outstanding score on its base grant renewal. The NIH conducts such a site review at least every five years to review the Yerkes Research Center’s significance, innovations, progress and plans. Also successfully renewed is Emory University’s Morris K. Udall Center of Excellence in Parkinson’s Disease Research. Yerkes researcher Thomas Wichmann, MD, is serving as the principal investigator. The Udall Center’s goal is to develop more effective Parkinson’s disease (PD) treatments that have fewer side effects. Also this year, the Yerkes Research Center selects its first Stuart Zola Graduate Fellow in Neuroscience. The fellowship honors former Yerkes director Dr. Stuart Zola for his long-term leadership of the Center, successful career as a researcher and unwavering commitment to supporting the training of neuroscientists. In addition, Yerkes names Manuel Yepes, MD, the inaugural Rollins Chair in Stroke and Imaging Research. Dr. Yepes will use the scientific expertise, state-of-the-art imaging facilities and animal colony at Yerkes to translate research findings from rodent models to nonhuman primates, a key transition that is likely to lead to the development of novel stroke treatments in humans.

2017 – Yerkes director Paul Johnson, MD, is appointed to the NIH Council of Councils. Council members advise the NIH Director on matters related to the policies and activities of the Division of Program Coordination, Planning, and Strategic Initiatives (DPCPSI). Also, the Yerkes Research Center successfully completes another AAALAC International accreditation process. The center has maintained continuous full accreditation since 1984.

Research Programs
Established in 1930, the Yerkes National Primate Research Center paved the way for what has become the National Institutes of Health-funded National Primate Research Center (NPRC) program. For more than eight decades, the Yerkes Research Center has been dedicated to conducting essential basic science and translational research to advance scientific understanding and to improve human health and well-being. Today, the Yerkes Research Center is one of only seven NPRCs. The center provides leadership, training and resources to foster scientific creativity, collaboration and discoveries, and research at the center is grounded in scientific integrity, expert knowledge, respect for colleagues, an open exchange of ideas and compassionate, quality animal care.

In the fields of microbiology and immunology, infectious diseases, pharmacology and drug discovery, transplantation, neurologic and psychiatric diseases, as well as behavioral, cognitive and developmental neuroscience, Yerkes scientists use innovative experimental models and cutting-edge technologies to explore and test transformative concepts aimed at: preventing and treating viral diseases such as AIDS; designing novel vaccines for infectious diseases such as malaria and tuberculosis; enhancing the potential of organ transplantation and regenerative medicine; discovering new drugs and drug classes through high-throughput screening; defining the basic neurobiology and genetics of social behavior and developing new therapies for disorders such as autism and drug addiction; investigating how adverse social experience and consuming an unhealthy diet influence neurobehavioral and immune system development, and evaluating interventions to alleviate negative health outcomes; understanding the biology of neurodegenerative diseases, such as Alzheimer’s and Parkinson’s diseases; and advancing knowledge about the evolutionary links between biology and behavior.

Information About Libraries

The Libraries of Emory University include the Robert W. Woodruff Library, as well as the Woodruff Health Sciences Center (WHSC) Library, the Hugh F. MacMillan Law Library, the Pitts Theology Library, the Goizueta Business Library, the Marian K. Heilbrun Music & Media Library, and the Oxford College Library. Holdings of the Emory Libraries total approximately 4.5 million print and electronic volumes, more than 100,000 electronic journals, and internationally renowned special collections including more than 25,000 linear feet of manuscripts and archives.

Emory’s Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives and Rare Book Library offers rich collections in areas such as the Irish literary revival, 20th Century American, British and Irish poetry, and African-American literature, history and culture. The library collects and connects stories of human experience, promotes access and learning, and offers opportunities for dialogue for all wise hearts who seek knowledge. African Americans in sports represents a new collecting focus announced in 2011. The Rose Library is also strong in research collections devoted to the social and cultural history of the American South, with a particular emphasis on Georgia and Atlanta.

The libraries offer access to thousands of electronic information resources, including in-house digital innovations such as The Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade Database (http://www.slavevoyages.org), the Internet journal Southern Spaces (www.southernspaces.org), and the Global Health Chronicles (http://globalhealthchronicles.org).

Pitts Theology Library, the third-largest theology library in the country, is home to the Richard C. Kessler Reformation Collection. The Woodruff Health Sciences Center Library includes branches at Grady Hospital and Emory University Hospital. Emory University’s Hugh F. MacMillan Law Library is a selective depository for U.S. government documents, and is a full depository for publications of the European Union.
The Emory Libraries are members of the Association of Research Libraries, OCLC, the Center for Research Libraries, the Coalition for Networked Information, the Digital Library Federation, and the Hathi Trust Digital Library. For more information about the libraries, visit http://libraries.emory.edu.

Libraries Historical Dates

1897 – (Warren Akin) Candler Library is constructed—the first separate library on Emory’s original campus at Oxford, Georgia.

1911 – A collection of books and papers associated with John Wesley and his family is purchased as the university’s first significant collection of rare books and manuscripts.

1926 – (Asa Griggs) Candler Library opens—the first separate library on the new Atlanta campus.

1969 – The Robert W. Woodruff Library, the first library built at Emory since 1926, opens, providing capacity for more than a million volumes.

1972 – One-millionth volume is added to the University’s libraries.

1975 – 220,000-volume collection of the Hartford Seminary is purchased, moving Pitts Theology Library into the front ranks of America’s theology libraries.

1976 – Pitts Theology Library expands into renovated space, occupying the entire original Theology Building.

1979 – The W.B. Yeats collection is acquired, Woodruff Library’s first step in building world-class poetry and modern literary archives.

1987 – The two-millionth volume is added to the University’s library holdings.

1987 – The Health Sciences Library is created, bringing together medical and dental libraries in a new location.

1994 – The Virtual Library Project launches, marking the beginning of Emory libraries' digital projects and programs.

2001 – The Marian K. Heilbrun Music and Media Library is dedicated on Level 4 of the Center for Library and Information Resources.

2003 – The renovated Asa G. Candler Library reopens, featuring the newly restored William L. Matheson Reading Room.

2004 – The Raymond Danowski Poetry Library is acquired—the largest collection of modern English-language poetry ever assembled by a private collector (some 70,000 volumes).

2007 – The archive of Pulitzer Prize-winner Alice Walker is acquired.

2008 – Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) places archive at Emory.

2013 – Emory Libraries and Information Technology Services are combined; The Emory Center for Digital Scholarship (ECDS) opens.

2014 – Pitts Theology Library opens in newly constructed space; Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives and Rare Book Library opens in expanded and renovated space on Woodruff Library’s top floor.

2016 - The Libraries of Emory University are ranked among the top 20 research libraries by the Association of Research Libraries.
